INTERPRETING

Communicate confidently in any situation with the expert help of an interpreter who understands the language of your business

Whether you are travelling abroad to a meeting or conference, or doing business with people who speak little or no English, our worldwide network of talented interpreters will speak for you. They will make sure you are heard in any language and help you to understand the discussion or presentation, regardless of the industry or context.

In some business situations, there is no room for error. That's why our talented linguists often have advanced degrees in computer science, engineering, management, law and, of course, languages. They are familiar with the technical and commercial language of a broad range of industries and we can match you closely with someone who understands your sector.

Types of interpreting

You may want your interpreter discretely translating from a distance, using wireless communication systems, or more visibly involved in helping the banter to flow easily in a business or social setting. There are many different ways to interpret, but they all lead to the same result: you understanding and being understood - clearly.

Here are some of the different sorts of interpreting we provide:

Simultaneous

The interpreter translates simultaneously with the speaker, using wireless infrared or wired transmission systems.

Consecutive

The interpreter translates the content of conferences, presentations, seminars and workshops.

Whispered

The interpreter sits next to you and provides a précis of the speaker's words. This is a one-to-one service.

Ad hoc

The interpreter helps to entertain your clients or provide translation 'on the go' for exhibitions, trade fairs and sightseeing excursions.

Telephone conference interpreting

We provide interpretation of different contributions in a conference call, even if the conversation is being conducted in several languages.

Telephone interpreting

This service enables you to communicate over the telephone, when talking to a foreign language speaker.
